What's in the name?

Purgation, that's easy. It means the purification or cleansing of someone or something. Auntie K, now that's a bit more complicated . . .

One sad sack summer day, Auntie K made 1/4 PB&J sandwich for her little grand niece who would barely eat a thing. She made it with fresh ground peanuts and homemade jelly. Just one problem—the jelly had been in the fridge for years. Auntie K is not a fan of jelly, so it went forgotten until this one fateful day. Luckily for the little niecey—she didn't want the tiny little sandwich. And less lucky Auntie K—not wanting to waste—ate it. You can only imagine the ugliness that ensued. From that day forward, Auntie K was deemed Auntie Poison—much to her embarrassment and dismay!!

This endeavor is an effort to ~~clean~~ clear her name, and clean the planet. So please, enjoy your nice safe non-poisonous cleaning stuff and spread the news—Auntie K can make one for your friends and family too!
