About

I'm a passionate and dedicated commercial photographer who specializes in food. For the past 5 years, I have worked with many restaurants and brands to create images of food that are colorful, bold and appealing to consumers. I have also been commissioned to create portraits of chefs and restaurateurs as well as lifestyle images of people enjoying a range of cuisines.

With a background in marketing and advertising as well as a masters degree in media studies, I have a professional understanding of how to create and present an image for maximum aesthetic and commercial impact.

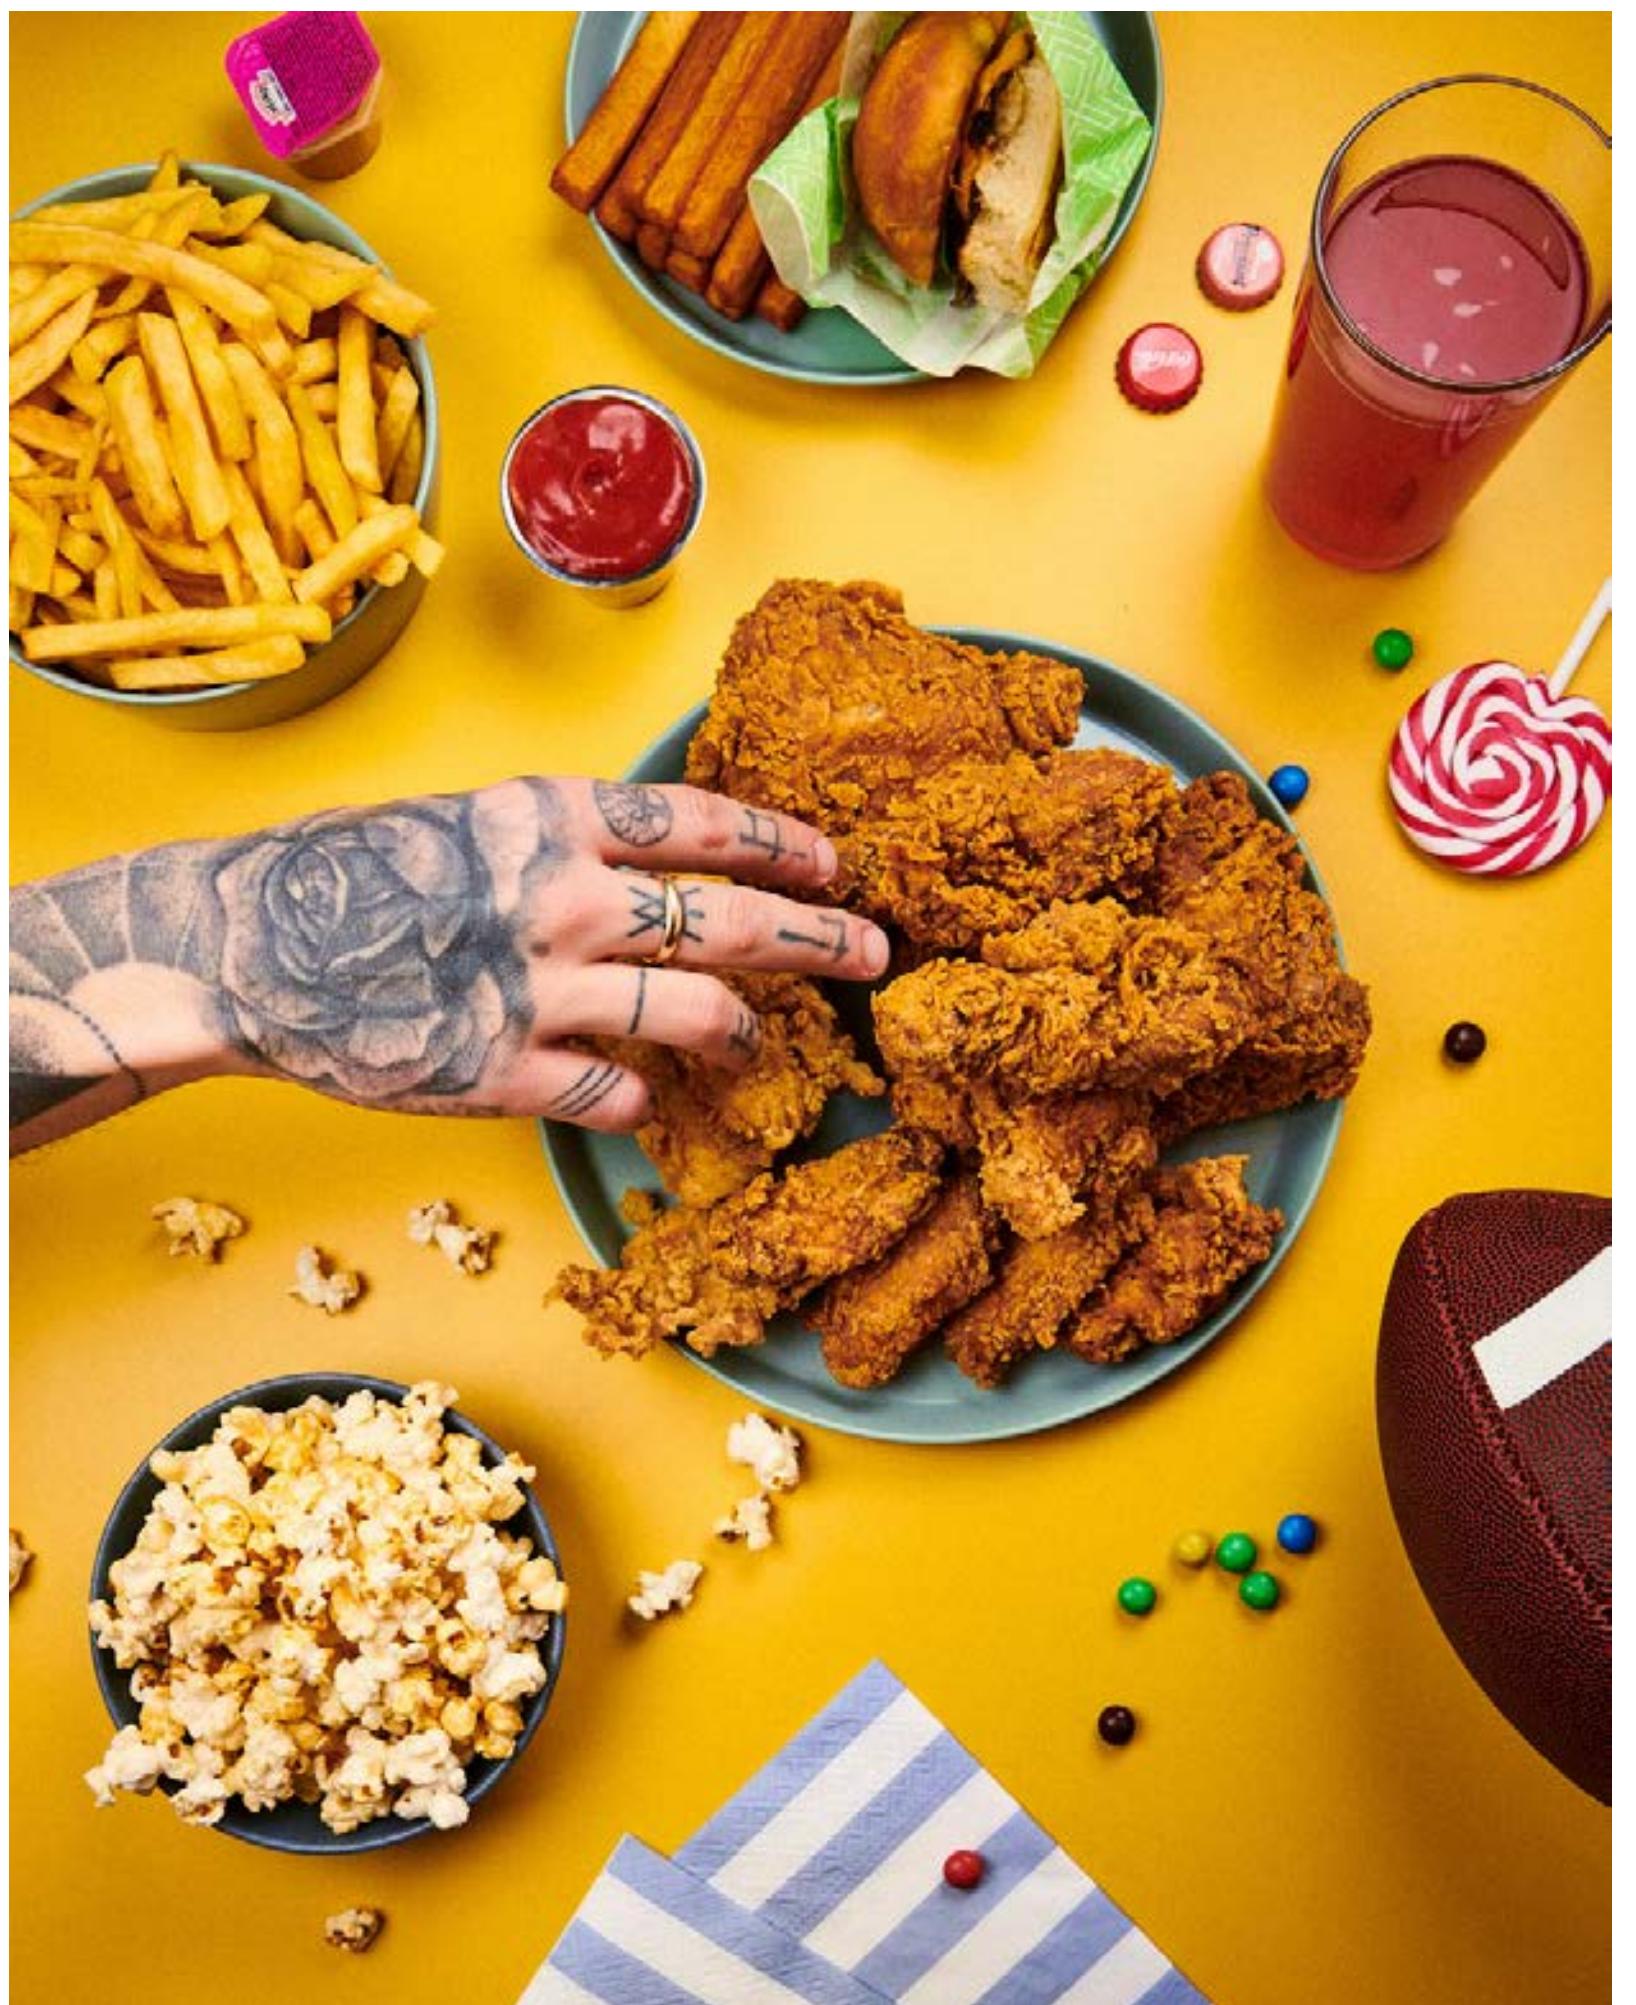

I enjoy working together with my clients and agencies to create engaging photos that fit their brand whether they want packaging and ads that introduce a product into the retail market, to showcase a new seasonal menu for a website or to create images for social media.
