
ENGLAND SMITH / MULTIMEDIA ARTIST PORTFOLIO

ARTISTIC IDENTITY

Born and raised in Wichita, KS, but found their creative drive in the heart of good ol' San Bernardino, CA. England is a free forming artist that connects to filmmaking, photography, and specifically analog photography. They're passionate about creating a welcoming and accepting environment for all people, places and moments they encounter and wish to spread love.

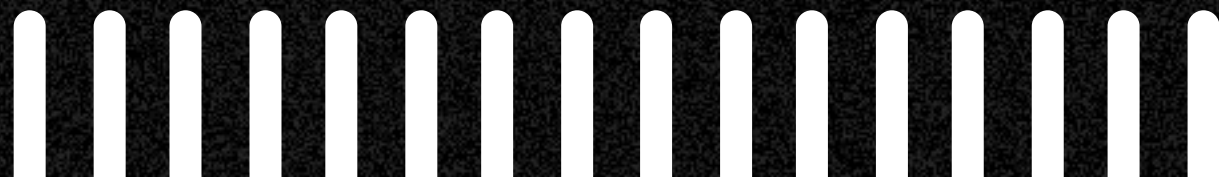

Their excitement of art can be expressed through intimate films that showcase tradition and culture with a bold spin like Netflix's "His House" by Remi Weekes or emotional grabs through the writing and transcended to deep layers of intensity like Michaela Coel's HBO series "I May Destroy You" and "Euphoria" by Sam Levinson. England's desire for life is to create films that hold weight in minds of inspiring creators and to keep learning.

ENGLAND

“I found photography on accident. While I was in college I truly created my own film degree route and when I attended CSUSB I thought photogrpahy was close enough to film that I would like it. I was right.

Early on all of my work was created through analog film and developed in a dark room. That’s really where my love for photography lays in my heart, but now I find myself taking pictures of all kind. Family photos, weddings, festivals, etc.

See I feel at home with a camera now in my life. Regardless of taking photos or recording it gives me happiness? Purpose I guess I can say. I truly owe thanks to the world around me for being so inspiring each day that motivates me to be so observant”
