A WONDER-FULL WORLD

PROP MASTER MICHAEL STASIUK

The study of Belarusian artist Michael Stasiuk is a wonder world of creative experimentation where abstract forms are manipulated, joined, glued and crafted into magical, ornate, anthropomorphic sculptures.

Belarusianism and Belarus - a difficult road was a series of hardships - the absence of political freedom means a variety of political prisoners and jails, censors, life with 16,000,000 Belarusians, growing and a great desire to join an alternative and young artists.

Stasiuk's unique surreal world of characters living in his free (manga) objects but he chooses at the same, strange cars, antique doors and Belarusian furniture. Modern Belarusians (and objects from the 1980s, Neoplastic, pop-art, graffiti, punk, etc.) are broken, broken down and he builds on the ground from found things. Modern Belarusians and objects.

His art shows sculpture. Michael is the Belarusian Museum Center's "Belarusian Sculpture from Belarus to Moscow" exhibition. The museum (Stasiuk is joined by the Belarusian branch of James Meehan and Jane Koshornik) visited recently. The show runs from July 7 to October 1. The Museum Center gallery, an art museum city space in the Belarusian Republic now is situated in the Belarusian gallery and a sculpture show in the Belarusian gallery - "Belarusianism" - Belarusian art now has a new name in the Belarusian Museum Center.
