

A man in a blue lab coat and a dark blue face mask is working in a laboratory. He is looking to his left, and his hand is near his chin. The background shows laboratory equipment, including shelves with various bottles and boxes, and a large grey ventilation duct hanging from the ceiling. The right side of the image has a blue and purple gradient overlay with white text.

What is there to gain from having a vaccination against Coronavirus?

Freedom

David works to understand what makes the virus tick by analysing the things it does and the proteins it makes when it infects a person.

Photography, design & concept @tomskipp
With special thanks to Kathleen Sedgley

tomskipp.com

Made possible in collaboration with  University of BRISTOL