

MASTERS

3.0 I'M DRIVING TO THE GROCERY STORE, LISTENING TO COMEDIAN MARC MARON'S INTERVIEW PODCAST. LATELY HE'S DOING A BIT ABOUT REFUSING TO BE BULLIED INTO SEEING THE COMIC BOOK MOVIES THAT DOMINATE THEATERS WORLDWIDE. "LOOK, I'M A GROWNUP—I'M NOT SEVEN—AND I THINK THOSE MOVIES ARE FOR GROWN, MALE NERD-CHILDREN," A POSITION THAT INCITES THE BILE-FILLED IRE OF THOUSANDS WHOM HE CLAIMS ARE "IN CHARGE OF CULTURE," PEOPLE WHO ZEALOUSLY DEFEND THE CHARACTERS AND STORIES THAT APPEASE THEM. AND I HAVE WITHIN ME BOTH THE SEVEN-YEAR-OLD AND THE GROWNUP COMPETING FOR CONTROL, WHICH IS WHY I SIT RAPT IN MY CAR BUBBLE, IN A GROCERY STORE PARKING SPOT, LISTENING TO MARON'S MONOLOGUE AS IF IT WERE DELIVERED BY A PSYCHOLOGIST EXPLAINING THE ORIGIN STORY OF HOW THE SEVEN-YEAR-OLD GAINED THE SUPER POWER OF BLENDING WITH THE ADULT ME.

"THERE WAS A FCC CHAIRMAN NAMED MARK FOWLER, AND THIS WAS DURING THE REAGAN ADMINISTRATION, AND THEY DID SOME FAIRLY SERIOUS DEREGULATING THAT HAD TO DO WITH ADVERTISING, BUT MORE CONCISELY TO MY ARGUMENT,

"had to do with the child brain. YES.

"They allowed—they sought to declare the television

"the incredibly powerful, desire-shifting, hypnotic box that it is.

"an APPLIANCE and not

ZZZZZZZZ!

"THEY WERE ABLE TO GET RID OF REGULATIONS AROUND ADVERTISING TO CHILDREN ON CHILDREN'S PROGRAMMING. THEY COULD DUMP AS MUCH SHIT INTO THE KIDS' HEADS AS THEY WANTED TO, OK? AND THEN AT THIS TIME, STAR WARS—I KIND OF MISSED THAT—I WAS

"young enough, but it didn't interest me that much, but after Star Wars,

"there was this movement toward toys. This isn't specifically about comic books,

"but after the success of the Star Wars toys, which happened with a small manufacturer, the large manufacturers are like, 'What can we do?'

"Around the same time they got the freedom to plow as much shit into kids' heads as they could,

and they invented He-Man.
